LET THE PEOPLE BE HEARD.

The Carson Tribune declares:

The nearer we come to election time the more clearly does it appear that in order to carry the Republican party to victory in this State the sovereign people must be allowed to select their own candidates for official position. We find none who express any desire to interfere with railroad management, but on the contrary, particularly as regards our own road, to do everything possible to foster its interests, realizing the fact that their prosperity is a great factor in the growth of Western Nevada and the same feeling seems to exist relative to the overland road. Such being the case, those corporations have nothing to fear from the people and can advance no reason for interfering with the State election. Let the people be heard!

There is nothing the Tribune more ardently desires than the perpetuity of the Republican party, and that being an acknowledged fact we deem it an imperative duty to call the attention of the world to political bosses that a very strong independent feeling obtains in the rank and file of the party, and such being the case a great deal of circumspection in the management of political affairs is an absolute necessity. Let the people have their say, and the glorious old party will remain intact, but should the old-time leaders attempt to foist unpopular men on the voters the result may be disastrous to both party and State.

Let the people be heard! for it is their privilege granted them by the Constitution of the United States. It is their birthright and no man or set of men should be permitted to wrest it from them. The boy growing towards man's estate, looks longingly toward the day when he shall cast his first ballot as a citizen of free America, but if the fact is forced upon him that his father was by circumstances compelled to vote for a person to official position, who in his heart he felt to be unworthy, it is apt to cause a lukewarmness in the young American's feeling which would lead him to think less than he otherwise would of the great honor pertaining to the exercise of the elective franchise. In fact it may be well for some readers of the Tribune to well consider the above remarks and leave politics to the sovereign people.

THE COMMUNISTIC BUGABOO.

The Enterprise, which, until a few days ago, had advocated a Constitutional Convention, has suddenly changed front and in Thursday's issue declared itself in opposition to the call, believing that the necessary changes can be made as easily by legislative amendments and at "far less cost." It admits that the cry of danger of the "communist element" controlling the convention is all balderdash. It intimates, or rather asserts, however, that the danger from the opposition is as much of a myth as the Nevada communists themselves, and that "it is purely imaginary with those, who, nursing a theory, search byways for opponents."

There is no need to go into the by-ways to find opponents to the convention who are using that argument in opposition, for plenty of them can be found upon the highways to our certain knowledge, in Washoe, Ormsby, Storey, Esmeralda and perhaps in other counties in the State. The writer of this has heard it a hundred times and from persons prominent in both of the political parties. In fact it was the only argument used before the Supreme Court decision furnished another and an equally absurd and fallacious one. It is still being used, and with more effect than is creditable to the intelligence of those who are influenced by it into opposition to a measure, which cannot be adversely criticized by any sound reasoning, or by references to facts concerning our government expenses or the history of attempted constitutional changes by our Legislature, since the organization of the State.

RECLAMATION COMMISSIONERS.

Through some oversight neither the Republican nor Democratic State Central Committees have incorporated in their call or the conventions the nomination of three Reclamation Commissioners. Under the law as passed by the last Legislature the Board as created was composed of J. P. Clark, of Humboldt, and Evan Williams, of Ormsby, for four years, and John R. Bradley, of Elko, and H. Springmeyer, of Douglas, for two years. Clark resigned, and L. B. Blakeslee was appointed to succeed him. Blakeslee's successor must be elected this Fall for the unexpired term of four years provided for Clark, and therefore, under the law and the Constitution, there will be three Commissioners to elect, two for two years, and one for four years. These officers are fully as important as any to be nominated by the Convention, for upon the work they may be called upon to perform, largely depends the future prosperity of the State. The Journal sincerely hopes that both political conventions will nominate prudent business men for the new Board.

SILVER DECLINE.

What's the matter with the Republicans compromise commodity silver law, which some enthusiastic Republicans claim is better than free coinage? Silver is going down about as fast as it went up a few days ago, being now quoted at 111½. The time when the new law goes into effect is drawing nigh, and the price of silver, measured by the only standard of values, is rapidly declining. Why is this thus, and if the law is as good as its advocates claim, why does silver not continue to rise in price?—like independent.

What was the matter with silver when Mr. Harrison's Administration came into power? It was 86 then and it is 113½ now, notwithstanding the Democratic "booming" in the West and the gold-bug "howling" in the East. That's what's the matter with the Republican compromise commodity silver law, which so enthusiastic Republicans have ever claimed was better than free coinage.

NEVADA'S GOVERNMENT.

The Pioche Record remarks:

It is about this time of year that some of our State papers indulge in cheap patriotism by suggesting the cutting down of the expenses of the State Government. It may be true that the State Government could be efficiently carried on for less money than is now expended; but it will be admitted by those who have given the subject honest consideration that the State Government of Nevada is carried on more cheaply, considering the wide extent of territory and sparse population, than those of many of the older States; and just as honestly and efficiently as any of them. These same papers suggest in a general way that "there is still greater chance for reform in the county governments," and then go on to state some entirely impracticable scheme evolved from the brain of a closet statesman. They refrain however from even so much as hinting that the pay of the officers of their own counties is too high.

They know that this is the cause which really makes the people complain in those counties; but have not the moral courage to say so. The State officials are, figuratively speaking, a long way off, and the Legislature they expect to be made up of unknown men, of whom they never expect to hear again; so the State officers and the legislators, both of which classes are in Nevada far superior to the average in the other States, for honesty and integrity, receive all the force of the ink spurts of our editors. Our brethren will be disappointed for suggesting that, if they really believe a financial reform necessary, they should begin at home, where they can be of some practical use instead of disseminating among the people an unreasonable discontent with what is, and always has been, on the whole a very fair State Government.

A HISTORICAL SPEECH.

With Which Cromwell Turned Parliament Into the Streets.

The speech with which Oliver Cromwell turned Parliament out of doors in 1653, has come to light through the researches of Dr. Wolfgang Michael, and there is strong evidence that it is authentic. It was this: "It is high time for me to put an end to your sitting in this place, which you have dishonored by your pious actions of every vice. You are a famous crew, and enemies to all good government. You are a pack of mercenary wretches, and would—like Esau—sell your country for a mess of pottage, and—like Judas—betray your God for a few pieces of money. Is there a single virtue now among you? Is there one vice ye do not possess? Ye have no more religion than my horse. Gold is your god. Which of you have not bartered away your conscience for brass? Is there a man among you that hath the least care for the good of the commonwealth? Ye sordid profligates! have ye not defiled this sacred place, and turned the Lord's temple into a den of thieves? By your immoral principles and wicked practices ye are grown intolerably odious to the whole nation. You, who were deputed here by the people to get their grievances redressed, are yourselves become their greatest grievance. Your country, therefore, calls upon you to cleanse this Augean stable by putting a final period to your iniquitous proceedings in this house, and which, by God's help, and the strength he hath given me, I am now come to do. I command you, therefore, upon peril of your lives, to get you out! Make haste! Ye venal slaves, begone! So! Take away that shining bauble there and lock up the door.—Ex.

A Shady Eastern Record.

The Boston Herald publishes the following concerning John D. Fiske, who was shot and killed a few days ago at Fresno, California, by Joseph F. Stillman:

"BROCKTON, (Mass.), July 28.—John D. Fiske, the lawyer, speculator and theatrical manager, who was shot by Joseph F. Stillman, in a hotel in Fresno, California, Saturday, is a former Brocktonian and while a resident of this city he had a very sensational career. When news reached here that he had met instant death, but little sorrow was expressed, and a number of those who had had dealings with him rather rejoiced in his fate. Fiske was a lawyer in Brockton about seven years ago and had a lucrative practice extending to other towns in this vicinity. His desire for money and his clients were obliged to submit to many acts of extortion. The first event in Fiske's checkered career which was made public, became known in 1883, when he had a divorce case before the Superior Court. Then the facts leaked out that he was counsel for both parties. This exposure resulted in his expulsion from the bar. While in Brockton he married a resident of this city. He so brutally abused her that she was obliged to leave him and she procured a divorce. This was Fiske's second wife and when he lost her he made suit to another Brockton young lady, but the facts which were known about his treatment of his first wife, broke off the engagement, and Fiske, as a lawyer, practiced many tricks on clients, principally women, and this soon resulted in his downfall. He entered a suit for $25,000 against the Brockton Enterprise, for libel about six years ago but the case was finally abandoned, because the facts which were published, were too strong for him. Finally, one day, Fiske left Brockton with many creditors to mourn him and was last heard of in White Plains, New York, where after various matrimonial enterprises and financial deceptions, he ran off with a young lady of good family. Then Fiske wended his way Westward, reaching the Golden Gate, where he loomed up as a theatrical manager and speculator."

A Button in His Bush.

At Marietta, Ohio, a gentleman swallowed an overcoat button, which he found in a dish of hash. The button closed the cardiac orifice of the stomach completely, and the case puzzled the physicians, as emetics were useless, because the medicine could not reach the stomach. After three days of terrible suffering, and when death was momentarily expected, he swallowed a button-hole tied to a string and fished out the cause of his trouble.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

TO A GLOVE.

Go, virgin kid, with lambent kiss
Salute a virgin hand;
Go, senseless thing, and reap a bliss
Thou dost not understand;
Go, for in thee, methinks, I find
(Though 'tis not half so bright)
An emblem of her beamy mind
By nature clad in white.

Securely thou may'st touch the fair,
Whom few securely can;
May'st touch her breast, her lip, her hair,
Or wanton with her fan;
May'st coach it with her, to and fro,
From masquerade to plays.
Ah! couldst thou hither come and go
To tell me what she says!

Go, thou, when the morning cold
Shall nip her lily arm,
Do thou (oh, might I be so bold)
With kisses make it warm.
But when thy glossy beauty's o'er,
When all thy charms are gone,
Return to me—I'll love thee more
Than e'er I yet have done.
—Haberdsber.

Tricks of the Birds.

"I was much amused one afternoon," says an observant friend, "by a little fairy scene on a twig of an elm tree, where a fly catcher had her tiny brood of five, just out of the nest, all perched in a row. She was feeding them, and the little dots took their rations with great content as often as the mother caught an insect and flew back with the morsel to each open beak in turn. The regularity with which she kept account, feeding one after another, in exact order, from top to bottom of the row, was very interesting. Presently one small chap grew impatient, and while the mother was away fluttered over and crowded himself into the place next to the bird last fed—exactly as if he had planned to get the next fly. He sat there, looking very sober and innocent when the mother returned, but she saw the trick at once, and gave the fly to the right bird, whisking the interloper (as I fancied) with her wing as she passed him, by way of cuffing his ears. Probably he was the rogue of the family, and she knew him too well."—Boston Transcript.

When Liszt Lived in a Flat.

Wrapped in his dressing gown, and with feet incased in slippers, Franz Liszt was sitting comfortably one evening in his arm chair, ready for work and inviting inspiration. On the floor above, in the apartments of a banker, a noisy musical soiree was in progress. Polonaises had succeeded waltzes, and nocturnes had followed polonaises, when suddenly the door of the salon opened and Liszt entered, still wrapped in his dressing gown. The astonishment of the company may be imagined. With slow steps Liszt walked toward the piano, and the young key pounder who was sitting at it quickly left his place. Liszt sat down at the instrument, carelessly swept his fingers over the keys as if to prelude, and then suddenly he shut down the cover and put the key in his pocket. And immediately, with the same tranquil air with which he had entered, he went out and returned to his room, where he could work at his ease.—San Francisco Argonaut.

At a Maine Funeral.

A Maine clergyman, who evidently is somewhat interested in the matter of funeral reform, writes: "Some time ago I attended a funeral which took place on the 'outskirts of civilization.' At the close of the services, as usual in the country, an invitation was given to the audience to 'view the remains.' After they had done so the relatives of the deceased went forward to take their last look at the familiar features, and naturally were much affected, some of them sobbing and crying in an audible manner. When all were again seated the person who had charge of the funeral arose and remarked, 'We will now allow the friends a few minutes to get control of their feelings,' when resumed his seat, while the silence was only broken by the sound of sighs and weeping, which gradually died away. It struck me as an innovation upon the usual funeral customs, but no one there seemed at all surprised."—Lewiston Journal.

A Large Hydraulic Riveting Plant.
An immense hydraulic riveting plant—the largest ever made—has been built in London for an engineering company in Holland, and is to be employed on marine boilers. The riveter has a gap 12 feet deep, closes its jaws with a power of 200 tons, and is capable of closing rivets up to 3½ inches in diameter. A traveling crane, 50 feet high, is designed to raise and manipulate a boiler weighing anything up to 50 tons. The crane is operated by two engines, steam for which and the powerful pumps giving hydraulic power for the riveter's great accumulator is supplied by two steel boilers, each capable of doing duty equal to about 130 indicated horse power.—New York Telegram.

Behind Time.

Some people go through life behind time. If they say they will come at 3, they mean half-past 3; and when they finally put in an appearance they do it leisurely and good naturedly, and are mildly surprised if you insinuate that you are displeased. When they die, though, their friends will be avenged, because they will probably reach the gates of heaven ten minutes behind time—and find them closed.—West Shore.

He Understood the Old Man.
The little boy had pounded his finger, and immediately set up a terrible hullabaloo. His father remonstrated with him, saying that he was no longer a baby and should act like a man.

"But," said the youngster, between his sobs, "if I act like a man I'd swear, and then you'd lick me!"—Exchange.

ROASTING A MINING TYRANT.

How the Men at the Khedive Lode Were Revenged at Lightning Speed.

In the mountains the miners frequently make their descent into the valleys by using a piece of "quaking ash" bark as a toboggan, but oftener rely on the tenacity of their heavy canvas overalls.

To some this method of transportation may seem absurd or impossible, but it is a fact nevertheless; men do go down the fearful slopes on the soft snow from the top of a two mile ridge in that manner faster than they ever did on a sled when a boy.

At the Khedive lode the miners had long borne a grudge against the superintendent, an overbearing ignoramus; so they swore they would get even with him some day.

The Khedive was located just two miles above the old government road leading to Gothic, at a bend, called "The Crook," and it required an hour's hard climbing on foot to get up to the mine from there.

One morning the superintendent came as usual to "inspect," as he termed it, but really to curse and rant around because the men could not make $100 ore yield $1,000.

The miners were just about tired of his tyranny and several suggested the propriety of giving him a pounding. However, Providence, who sometimes advocates the cause of the poor miner as well as that of the rich nabob who owns the property, came to the men's assistance at this critical juncture.

The obnoxious superintendent was expecting some important instructions from headquarters, and gave orders that if a telegram came to dispatch a clerk on horseback until he reached "The Crook," and there to discharge his pistol. While tearing around, cursing the miners as his wont, suddenly a shot rang out on the clear air, and looking down into the valley, all saw a messenger waving a paper.

The anxious superintendent was in a fix; he wanted that telegram in a hurry, but knew that the steep trail would demand an hour's hard work to reach there.

At this moment the wag of the crew stepped up to him and offered a big iron scoop shovel, suggesting that if he sat in that he could go down the hill quickly and safely.

The superintendent had often seen the descent made on the snow as stated, but he did not see the roguish twinkle in the man's eye as he took the proffered implement.

His trousers were thin, so grasping the handle and sitting in the concave part of the shovel, he shot down the declivity; faster and faster he went until he fairly flew.

His seat by the terrible friction grew warmer and warmer as he sped recklessly on, but there was no stopping until the bottom was reached. He was literally roasted; but the miners had their revenge.—Kansas City Globe.

Ninety-six Feet of Snowfall in Colorado.

Did you ever stop to think and figure up how much loose snow actually falls in the course of an average mountain Colorado winter? If you have, didn't the amount amaze you? At Kokomo in 1884-5, by actual daily measurements, something like ninety-six feet of the beautiful fell between Nov. 1 and June 1. Of course it kept on settling all the time, and when spring opened up there wasn't more than six or seven feet on the ground. The snowfall at Kokomo is generally twice or three times what it is at Dillon, yet the amount that fell here during the winter of 1889-90 sounds like a big yarn, but the figures given below are absolutely correct and were carefully recorded daily by Mr. Pratt at Ryan Gulch, just north of town.

Amount of snowfall, gauged at a point one mile north of Dillon, between the first day of November, 1889, and May 10, 1890: November, 38 inches; December, 81 inches; January, 31 inches; February, 41 inches; March, 70 inches; April, 22 inches; May, 17 inches—making a total of 20 feet 10 inches. About eight-tenths of this snow fell during the night time, and nearly one-half of it was very damp, settling rapidly as it fell. These figures seem preposterous, yet Dillon is not much of a place for snow either, and gets less of the beautiful than any other town in the county.—Dillon Enterprise.

Metal in Bookbinding.

Metal has for some time been very advantageously used in the binding of books as a substitute for cardboard. A special preparation is first necessary, and the leather may be bent and straightened again without perceptible damage, a course of treatment that would destroy cardboard covers. The metal is covered with any material that taste may dictate, and the finished book shows no difference in appearance excepting in greater thinness of the cover, which is always desirable.—New York Telegram.

They Made a Better Article Themselves.
Woman (to drug store clerk)—Have you an article called a two cent postage stamp on sale?

Drug Clerk (mechanically)—We sometimes keep it, but I think we are out of it just now. There is very little demand for it. Quite inferior, I assure you. Now, we make an article of our own that—oh, it is a postage stamp you want. Certainly; here is one. Have it charged?—Texas Sittings.

It Is Not Cruel.

A college boy at Adrian undertook to ride a bucking broncho. The broncho bucked and kicked and cavorted and stood on both ends by turns, and a citizen had the boy arrested for cruelty to animals. The jury, taking into consideration the characteristics of the broncho, found that it was not cruel and acquitted the defendant.—Detroit Free Press.

Exchange of Courtesy.

Thin Old Man (cramped and cross)—This car ought to charge by weight.
Stout Woman (regarding him contemptuously)—If they did they'd never stop to pick you up.—New York Ledger.

They came in response to a telegram sent Thursday evening stating that Mrs. Rhodes was seriously ill with malarial fever. The lady was unconscious when her sisters arrived and her case was considered an exceedingly critical one, but the patient rallied considerably during the day and Mrs. Hogan and Thomas are hopeful that the most dangerous stage of the malady has been passed.

Death of a Former Renote.

Of the death of W. W. Cook, in years gone by a resident of Reno, the Butte Daily Miner, of August 1st, has this:

Manager William W. Cook, of the gas works, died of a complication of consumption and pneumonia at his home, No. 612 South Main street, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Deceased had been confined to his bed only two days and to a friend who called upon him Wednesday morning he stated that although suffering considerably pain he would be up and around again in a day or two. Wednesday evening he grew rapidly worse, however, and death relieved his sufferings yesterday morning. Mr. Cook was about 40 years old, was highly respected by all and, besides a large circle of friends leaves a wife and child to mourn his demise. The funeral will take place from the family residence at 2 o'clock to-day.

Pawning for Governor.

The Times-Review, says the Silver State, nominates C. C. Pawning, of the Reno Journal, for Governor, and advances strong arguments in support of his candidacy. General Pawning made an excellent legislator when in the Senate, and it is not probable that he would steal the inaugural address of some Governor east of the Mississippi, and use it as his own. It is not likely, either, that he would issue a partisan paper for a Thanksgiving proclamation, or imagine that he comprised the whole State Government, and resolve himself into a committee to adopt resolutions on the death of a fellow official.

The N. C. & O. Nuisance.

EDITOR JOURNAL: In order that the public may understand just what was decided in the case of the State vs. J. M. Fulton, lately tried before Judge Bigelow, we wish to state that Mr. Fulton attempted to justify the laying and maintaining of a railroad track on East street by producing an order of the County Commissioners made in 1884 permitting Moran Bros., of New York, to lay the tracks of the Nevada & Oregon Railroad in and upon East and Third streets. This order Judge Bigelow held to be void, and no justification to the charge of maintaining a nuisance in a public street, for the reason that the statute of this State authorizing the Commissioners to grant the right to the use of the public streets for railroad purposes restrict that power so that it can be granted only to "Corporations formed and existing under the laws of this State." Such a grant made to private individuals is certainly void. Upon this ruling being made by the Judge our object in prosecuting Mr. Fulton was accomplished, and we had no desire to see him punished, so advised the District Attorney to permit a verdict of "not guilty" to be rendered in the case.

The owners, and agents of the owners of this very narrow gauge road now have ample notice of the illegality of their act in obstructing the streets and in the future must govern themselves accordingly or expect prosecution.

We have been charged in open Court by counsel for Moran Bros. with being blackmailers and being animated in the matter by a spirit of spite and malice. We now submit to a candid public that we have been right and had the law on our side all along, and that we have been simply protecting our homes and property from great injury, without a cent's recompense.

Respectfully, etc.,

Humboldt Happenings.

Silver State, August 14th

Assessor Riley reports Paradise farmers busy harvesting. The grain crop is good and the yield in proportion to the acreage sown will be above the average.

The Mill City reduction works, which have been undergoing repairs for some time, are almost ready to start up. There are over two hundred tons of ore from the Humboldt Queen mine at the mill awaiting reduction and the quantity is being increased daily.

Light showers of rain fell in Humboldt valley yesterday and last night and there were heavy showers and cloudbursts in places in the mountains. No damage is reported except washouts in places on the railroad.

The Hope mine in Buena Vista district was bonded last winter to D. N. Brown. Mr. Brown found purchasers for the mine East, and went to work to develop it. Reduction works were built, the mine opened, a tramway erected and many improvements made. A new town, named Sanborn, sprang up near the reduction works, which are only 2,000 feet below the main tunnel on the mine, and a Postoffice has been established there. Yesterday H. P. Lyon, one of the purchasers, arrived here and made the first payment of $12,000 to P. Lavigne and others, who sold the mine. The purchasers have spent a large amount of money in developments, and it is believed that they have a mine fully as rich as the famous Arizona, which is on the same hill.

A Nevada Invention.

A. L. Parker, at the sheep ranch (Round Spring) between Hamilton and Shoshone, Station, in White Pine county, is setting up an iron roof on his new house. Such roof is of new pattern, manufactured in Elureka, Nevada, and seems to possess several advantages over all kinds of roofing used in this country, it is painted on both sides—in and out—and yet is cheaper than shingles; is easy and speedy to put on it can't be raised or injured by the wind; has no nails exposed to rust and leaking; is very strong and durable and gives the house a look of neatness and finish. To manufacture this roofing at a low price, some large pieces of machinery have been constructed, which can turn out whole plates eight feet long with precision and dispatch.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. feb. 21-wfy

Not a Candidate for Governor.

Some of our exchanges, says the Silver State, which are given to the discussion of candidates, say that Judge Fitzgerald is in the field for Governor and then proceed to show that he is not eligible for the position because he holds a judicial office. While, under the Constitution, a Judge may be disqualified for any office other than judicial for the term for which he was elected, it makes no difference whatever in Judge Fitzgerald's case for the reason that he is a candidate for re-election to the Bench and never thought of running for Governor.

A PERPETUAL MOTION PUMP.

Converting the Rolling Sea Waves Into Power for Pumping Water.

Undneath the pier of the Bond Wave Power company at Ocean Grove, N. J., a mammoth iron egg floats upon the top of the waves. In mild weather the egg bobs up serenely, rising to a height of about fourteen inches above the dead level of the sea, but when the weather is rough and great rollers come rushing in the egg rises forcefully upward five feet or more. It cannot get loose, for it is made fast to the pier by long, strong arms of iron. Up from the top of the mammoth egg a rope runs, and after it has passed over a pulley it stretches on shoreward, and at last enters a wooden building situated upon the beach. In the building is a pump, and the rope is in connection with it. The pump is lifting about 3,000 gallons of water a minute, raising it distances equivalent to the height of the waves.

The explanation of the apparatus and the work it is doing is that Mr. N. O. Bond, whose namesake the Bond Wave Power company is, has successfully completed an experiment undertaken primarily to determine if it were possible to make the ocean, by the motion of its waves, pump enough of itself into Wesley lake to make that lake a body of salt water. There are people living in Asbury Park and Ocean Grove who, considering that the sources of the water of Wesley lake are in the swamp lands, judge that the lake is to some extent a health-rending body of water, and they have for some time wished that it might be salted. Mr. Bond says that he will have no difficulty in making Lake Wesley salt, and he expects to do it. He says that he is perfectly satisfied that his new wave machine will not only do the work which it was especially devised to do, but he is also assured that it will be found a valuable machine for doing other things which need to be done economically.

He says that the machine is strong enough to work comfortably in the roughest weather and that it is built with an especial view to making it run with very little supervision. He says that the wave gate which is in use as the motive power of the street sprinkling system at Ocean Park ran all through the winter of 1889-90 without getting out of order, and that its operations were not in the slightest interfered with by the great storm, which, it will be recalled, was spoken of as "the greatest storm for thirty years." The wave egg, Mr. Bond says, will be as little liable to disarrangement by heavy weather as the wave gate was.

The new machine may be used wherever waves rise and fall, and there need not necessarily be a pier to hold it to its work. It may be kept in place by piles quite as well as by a pier, for, while the force of a great wave is immense, it is not so exerted upon the egg as to give a shock, such, for example, as the shock of a cannon ball.

The wave egg may be made as its uses may demand. The one in operation at Ocean Grove has a major diameter of ten feet, a minor diameter of seven feet, and its weight, conjoined with the arms by which it is fastened to the pier, is about two tons. The length of the arms is thirty-three feet.—New York Times.

Trials of Mail Smuggling.

"I have known," said Deputy Ben Armstrong at the postoffice, "of whole suits coming in letters. You smile? I will explain. A garment that has been cut to fit a customer can be sent by piecemeal. We discovered one-half a trousers leg in a big letter once, and we decided to lay for the rest of the suit. Sure enough, eight big, thick letters followed, addressed to the same man. Our first idea was to send for the man and compel him to pay duty, but then the joke was too good and had to be played to its legitimate conclusion.

"We sent him a piece of the pants, a piece of the vest and a coat sleeve."

The deputy went on to say that on the following day the young fellow came in, all of a perspiration. He was expecting some foreign mails from "Lurnon, don't you know," and at least five letters were missing. He was told to come on the following day and the letters might be found.

He came, and Postmaster Van Cott forced him to open in his presence the three letters they had discovered, and out came the dutiable goods and the swell had to foot.

"But," concluded the deputy, "these were not all the letters, and we made him worry for two weeks over the missing pants leg and one little coat tail, on all of which he finally paid duty."—New York Journal.

The Ideal Suburban Site.

Stating it directly, the best work enables us to approach by a drive upon one side, alight at an entrance porch, enter by an entrance hall, advance thence into the hall, and through it out upon the veranda, and so on upon the lawn. This is the simple result, and the reason is as simple. The entrance is for access; the hall, veranda, lawn and the prospect beyond belong to the private life of the house. Tradesmen or visitors, however welcome, cannot be dropped into the midst of the family group. Even the welcome guest wishes to cross the threshold and meet the outstretched hand and cordial greeting within. Even Liberty hall must have its defense.—Bruce Price in Scribner's.

Struck Six Times by Lightning. There is an old three story tenement house in Randolph, Mass., that is known the country round as the "dighthouse." This house has been struck by lightning six times since 1882, and thrice partly burned. Yet no one of the numerous tenants has ever been killed, although the current has traversed the house a different way each time.—Boston Globe.

A Determined Man.

Johnson—When are you going to paint that fence for me, Uncle Rastus?
Uncle Rastus—Well, sah, I reckon I'll do it Saturday, if de Lawd's willin', or if not, I'll do it Monday, anyway, suah.
—West Shore.

Everybody Satisfied.

In the case of the State vs. J. M. Fulton tried in the District Court a few days ago, both parties claimed a victory. Although the suit was brought in the name of the State as plaintiff, the real parties in interest on that side were a number of property holders and house-dwellers on East street, upon whose complaint Mr. Fulton, as an employee of the owners of the N. C. Railroad, was tried for misdemeanor in running the track along the street, to the damage of the occupants of the houses. The Court decided during the trial that the road was constructed on the street without legal authority, but charged the jury to the effect that the defendant was not the person against whom the action should have been brought. The verdict was, of course, an acquittal, but the property owners claim that they gained all they expected or desired, in the Court's decision concerning the illegality of the road's occupancy of the street. The result was a good deal like that of a runaway slave case in the early days of California, in which a witty lawyer declared that Courts decision gave the law to the North and the nigger to the South.

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors"; which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can IT BE CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. "My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofulous sore neck from the time she was 22 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. CARLISLE, Nauright, N. J.
